

Maureen Scanlin is Deputy Chief of Party of the USAID Integrated Land and Resource Governance II (ILRG II) Program, which is implemented by Tetra Tech ARD, based in Burlington, VT. The ILRG II program works with USAID missions, operating units, host country governments, civil society, the private sector, and local communities to develop inclusive, innovative and replicable strategies to clarify tenure and property rights and resolve land-related conflicts. ILRG II's approach to land and resource governance supports a broad range of development goals, including combating climate change, promoting food security, supporting biodiversity conservation, enabling gender equality, preventing and mitigating conflict, and supporting sustainable urbanization and enabling localization.

Maureen has twenty years of experience in tenure and property rights, natural resources management, democracy and governance, and public health. She has worked in Africa, Eurasia, Latin America, and the Caribbean. Her interest in exploring and working internationally was sparked by her experience as a Student Ambassador to Japan with the World Affairs Council of Western Massachusetts, and she later went on to serve as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Mongolia (2006-09). Maureen has a B.A. in International Affairs from The George Washington University in DC, and an M.S. in Management of Sustainable International Development from SIT Graduate Institute in Brattleboro, VT.
